

TCC GO (Growing Our Own)

TCC GO is dedicated to helping Alaska Native students leave high school with a career plan and knowledge of post-secondary education and vocational training opportunities. TCC GO participants will learn what options might be the best fit for their interests and how to pursue them. Our Student Support Coordinators and staff work with students to develop a plan regardless of their career interest.

- Alaska Native students interested in getting a head start on their career or college/technical program of study.
- Students that are college ready and prepared to meet the challenges of dual credit courses.

How could the TCC GO program help you reach your high school and after-graduation goals? _____

If "yes," what kind of courses would you be interested in taking? _____

Once you identify some career areas that interest you, look at your high school curriculum to see what classes may help in your career decision-making. Interested in journalism? Try a writing class. Interested in medicine? Sign up for an anatomy or biology class. Taking a class can re-affirm your interest in the field and build on your skills. If you find that the class is not for you, you still have time to change course and explore different career paths. High school provides the perfect time to "sample" what is out there before you need to make a commitment. Take classes now to help establish a direction for the future.
